

Supporting your Learning in History

Exam Dates

Your History exams will be:

AQA Paper 1: Modern World: Germany & Conflict and Tension: The Inter War Years Thursday 20th May 2027

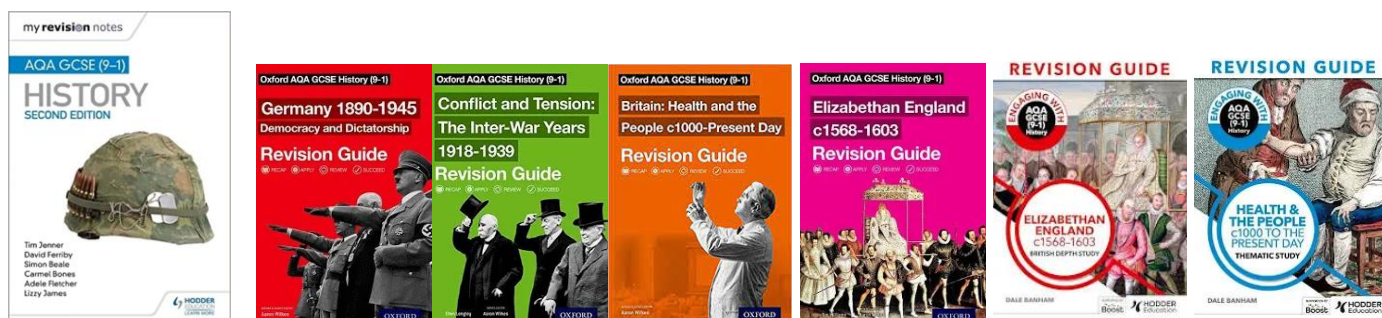

AQA Paper 2: Shaping the Nation: Health and the People & Elizabeth I Friday 28th May 2027

You need to be able to:

- Show your knowledge and understanding of change and continuity of the historical time periods that you have studied
- Explain and analyse historical events, developments and issues within the periods studied
- Analyse, evaluate and use sources to make judgements about their usefulness within the historical context
- Evaluate and make judgements about the differences of interpretations and how convincing they are

Top Tips

- Use the History PLCs to identify what you need to revise and rate them to see which topics are less secure, so you know where to focus your revision
- Make flash cards about key events, individuals and concepts then use the flash cards to test yourself.
- Write Cornell notes or mindmaps to condense and summarise key information in a logical way.
- Produce detailed timelines of key events and developments for each of the units of study.
- Plan the answers to different types of exam questions and then use your plans to write timed responses.
- Make sure that you use The Globe resource pack to learn about the historic environment – this will definitely be on the Elizabeth paper and the question will be worth 16 marks.
- Know your individuals for Britain, Health and the People – don't confuse them!
